Yetter Improves Customer Service with Enhanced ERP

The new ERP computer operating system will provide customers with detailed real-time information.

New computer system increases productivity and effectiveness

Yetter customer service continues to improve. Thanks to a new Enhanced Resource Planning (ERP) system which went live in July, customers can now receive order acknowledgements, emailed invoices, and real-time information about their orders.

The enhanced ERP provides detailed information on every part from the time parts are scheduled to shipment. All parts numbers are serialized and can be tracked through the facility for location, status, next step, shipment, etc.

ERP is a computer operating system which integrates internal and external information across the entire Yetter organization, including manufacturing, sales and service, and customer relations.

“Yetter is leveraging technology to increase productivity and effectiveness, just as our production agriculture customers are doing as they move into precision farming,” said Aaron Bush, Territory Manager.
